LIEBERMAN AND STERN HONORED AT 2011 DOOLITTLE PRIZE DINNER

At Hudson's 2011 James H. Doolittle Prize Dinner in New York City in June, the Institute honored Senator Joseph I. Lieberman (I-Conn.) with this year's prize for his courageous leadership and distinguished record of accomplishment in a long career devoted to ensuring the safety and security of the United States.

"Our country has benefited immensely from Joe Lieberman's leadership and courage," said Hudson President and CEO Kenneth Weinstein during his introduction of the Senator. "He is a pillar of independence and strength, and we are all profoundly grateful for his service."

At the dinner, Hudson also paid tribute to Chairman Emeritus Walter P. Stern for his many years of service to the Institute. Stern has supported, shaped, and led Hudson for more than three decades and has helped make Hudson a world-class public policy innovator.

In his speech before the Trustees, distinguished guests, and media, Senator Lieberman warned against an isolationist American foreign policy.

"We do not live in a 'post-American world," Lieberman said. "We live in a world in which American leadership and American power are more important than ever. The American people intuitively understand CONTINUED ON PAGE 23

50th ANNIVERSARY 1961–2011

CHAIRMAN'S LETTER

Dear Friends of Hudson Institute,

As Chairman, it is an honor to note that Hudson Institute is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary and continues to expand and prosper. I am exceedingly proud to look back upon the remarkable legacy of the Institute and to look optimistically into our future.

Today, as you see chronicled in this edition of News & Review, Hudson's experts help national and international leaders understand the threat of radical Islam and terrorism. Our scholars work to promote freedom and human rights. Hudson's economic research promotes growth, trade, innovation, and prosperity. Our renowned work on American institutions and ideals is guided by the principles of America's founders, and our studies on philanthropy measure the effectiveness of private and faith-based assistance empowering individuals.

Among Hudson's recent fiftieth-anniversary activities was a gala dinner in New York, where we honored two extraordinary individuals: Sen. Joseph Lieberman and Hudson Chairman Emeritus Walter Stern. My longtime friend Joe has advanced and protected American interests through his work in the Senate. And for four decades, Wally has guided the Institute; he has done more than anyone else to keep Hudson Founder Herman Kahn's dream alive.

It is with pride that I announce important changes at this milestone in our history. Hudson's Board of Trustees has elected Kenneth Weinstein as President and CEO. I am confident Ken will take Hudson in bold new directions as we advance into our next fifty years (see page 16). And I'm delighted to announce that Marie-Josée Kravis and Sarah Stern have become Vice Chairs of the Board.

Also this summer, Hudson welcomed new CFO John Freeman and scholars Harold Furchtgott-Roth and Bruce Cole (see page 7). They will bring their expertise to Hudson's already deep bench of public policy experts and exceptional staff.

Not losing sight of those who brought us to where we are today, I would like to express my thanks on behalf of the Institute to two exemplary individuals, President Emeritus Herbert London—who I'm pleased will continue to be a part of Hudson management—and retiring Vice President and CFO Deborah Hoopes. They have contributed decades of talent and leadership to Hudson Institute.

I hope you will consider being a part of Hudson's bright future and our next fifty years by becoming a financial supporter.

With best wishes,

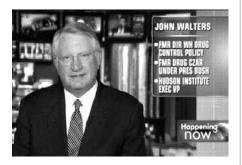

ALLAN R. TESSLER

Chairman

EXCERPTS OF CONGRESSIONAL TESTIMONY BY HUDSON SCHOLARS

■ APARNA PANDE

testifies before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, Subcommittee on Investigations and Oversight, July 26

A stable and effective civilian democratic Pakistan is the best bulwark against radical Islamism, al-Qaeda, and other jihadi groups in South Asia. Not only will the United States benefit from a stable Pakistan, but the entire region will as well. A stable Pakistan is necessary for a stable Afghanistan. China and India share the desire for a stable Pakistan since the last thing they want is Pakistan failing or collapsing or radical Islamists becoming stronger in Pakistan and crossing in greater numbers across the border.

DIANA FURCHTGOTT-ROTH

testifies before the Joint Economic Committee, July 12

The Great Recession ended in June 2009, but, two years later, something is still terribly wrong.... It is most troubling that whereas jobs are the first priority for most Americans, the administration's regulatory and legislative agenda has had the effect of reducing jobs rather than creating them. Energy and environmental regulation, new financial legislation, the new health care law, and proposed tax increases all serve to drive jobs abroad rather than foster domestic growth.

■ HAROLD FURCHTGOTT-ROTH

testifies before the House Judiciary Committee, Subcommittee on Courts, Commercial, and Administrative Law. June 8

The public and our economy would benefit substantially from the careful consideration of the costs and benefits of regulations. Federal agencies have substantial legal and regulatory requirements, including Executive Orders 12866 and 13563, to document their consideration of the costs and benefits of proposed and new regulations. However, the executive orders are not sufficient to ensure reasoned rulemaking. For instance, the FCC does not effectively document or weigh the benefits and costs of its rulemakings.

■ CHRISTOPHER FORD

testifies before the United States-China Economic and Security Review Commission, March 10

Today, China seems openly assertive. The narrative promoted by Beijing seems now to be one of power by birthright: the assertion of special prerogatives in East Asia, coupled with an ostentatious show of emerging military capabilities focused upon denying U.S. military forces access to the region, thereby deterring our intervention in whatever future conflicts might erupt there involving China.

■ RICHARD WEITZ

testifies before the United States-China Economic and Security Review Commission, April 13

Since the end of the Cold War, the improved political and economic relationship between Beijing and Moscow has affected a range of international security issues. China and Russia have expanded their bilateral economic and security cooperation. In addition, they have pursued distinct, yet parallel, policies regarding many global and regional issues. Yet, Chinese and Russian approaches to a range of significant subjects are still largely uncoordinated and at times in conflict. Economic exchanges between China and Russia remain minimal compared to those found between most friendly countries, let alone allies.

■ NINA SHEA

testifies before the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission, House Committee on Foreign Affairs, January 20

In the case of both countries—Egypt and Iraq—we are talking about allies of the United States, governments with which we have strong relationships and to which we give billions of dollars in aid annually. It is time to act decisively on behalf of the fundamental human right of freedom of religion or belief, especially for religious minorities, including Christians. Not only is this a moral imperative, but Congress should understand that this is good for security—our security, the security of both nations, and global security. The continued threat against the Christian communities of both countries undermines an important moderating influence in the region. In the case of Iraq, we have a special obligation to render our assistance while our presence remains in that nation. The transition from dictatorship to political democracy must include the protection of religious freedom.

HUDSON LAUNCHES CENTER FOR ECONOMICS OF THE INTERNET AND WELCOMES NEW SCHOLARS

"Federal agencies are currently addressing policy decisions based on a theory of 'Internet exceptionalism,' where ordinary principles of economics do not apply," said Mr. Furchtgott-Roth. "Unfortunately, this arrangement only serves to harm consumers and weaken our businesses. The Center for Economics of the Internet will dispel the myth that regulating one part of the Internet ecosystem can be walled off from impacting other parts of the ecosystem."

From 2001 to 2003, Furchtgott-Roth was a Visiting Fellow at the American Enterprise Institute and a Senior Fellow at Hudson from 2006 to 2007. From 1997 through 2001, he served as a commissioner of the Federal Communications Commission. In that capacity, he served on the Joint Board on Universal Service. He is one of the few economists to have served as a federal regulatory commissioner, and the only one to have served on the Federal Communications Commission.

Before his appointment to the FCC, Furchtgott-Roth was chief economist for the House Committee on Commerce and a principal staff member on the Telecommunications Act of 1996.

In May, Bruce Cole, then the President and CEO of the American Revolution Center (ARC), was named a Senior Fellow at Hudson.

"Bruce Cole is both a distinguished scholar and an eminent leader in the humanities," says Hudson President and CEO Kenneth Weinstein. "My colleagues and I look forward to benefiting from his extensive scholarship and expertise."

Before joining the ARC, Cole served as Chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), where he managed a budget of $150 million and was responsible for awards totaling over $800 million. Appointed by President George W. Bush and unanimously confirmed by the Senate in 2001 and again in 2005, Cole was the longest serving Chairman of the NEH. Under Cole's leadership, the NEH launched key initiatives, including We the People, a program designed to encourage the teaching, study, and understanding of American history and culture.

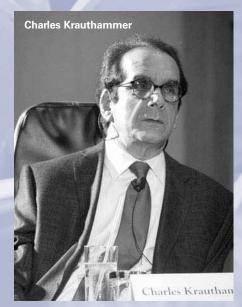

In July, Hudson welcomed Chief Financial Officer John Freeman. Freeman is responsible for oversight and control of the Institute's financial operations and administration. He is an accomplished CONTINUED ON PAGE 22 n June, Hudson Institute launched the Center for Economics of the Internet, designed to highlight Internet policies that draw on freemarket principles. The Center was founded and is directed by former FCC Commissioner and new Senior Fellow Harold Furchtgott-Roth.

his year's BRADLEY SYMPOSIUM, hosted by Hudson's Bradley Center for Philanthropy and Civic Renewal and National Affairs, featured a discussion among prominent political figures and scholars on American identity, focusing on a speech by Theodore Roosevelt entitled "True Americanism." The forum was moderated by Hudson Institute Senior Fellow AMY KASS and AEI Madden-Jewett Scholar LEON KASS.

Covered by C-SPAN, the event examined a new anthology, What So Proudly We Hail: The American Soul in Story, Speech, and Song (ISI Press), edited by Amy Kass, Leon Kass, and DIANA SCHAUB. The anthology uses the soul-shaping possibilities of American short stories, political speeches, and songs as it addresses issues of identity, the American character, and the virtues and aspirations of civic life.

The distinguished panel included SEN. LAMAR ALEXANDER (R -Tenn.); ROBERT GEORGE of Princeton University; DANIEL HENNINGER, Wall Street Journal Deputy Editorial Page Editor; CHARLES KRAUTHAMMER, Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist; HARVEY MANSFIELD of Harvard University; WILFRED MCCLAY of the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga; DIANA SCHAUB, Co-editor, What So Proudly We Hail; PAUL SINGER, Founder of Elliott Associates; and JUAN WILLIAMS, journalist and Fox News political analyst.

EXPORT CONTROLS: WHAT'S AHEAD FROM THE OBAMA ADMINISTRATION AND CONGRESS?

Export controls in the United States are at a crossroads, with potentially significant consequences for both national security and the global defense industry. Hudson's conference examined the Obama administration's export control reform proposals with a panel that included Michael Froman, Deputy Assistant to the President and Deputy National Security Adviser for International Economic Affairs; Douglas Feith, Hudson Institute Senior Fellow; William Schneider, President of International Planning Services; and Brandt Pasco, Attorney at Kaye Scholer.

BOOK FORUM ON HISTORY OF THE FUTURE: THE SHAPE OF THE WORLD TO COME IS VISIBLE TODAY

Human character has always been shaped by struggles against poverty, tyranny, and war. Hudson Institute cofounder and Senior Fellow Max Singer's new book, History of the Future: The Shape of the World to Come Is Visible Today (Lexington Books), argues that poverty, tyranny, and war will be largely eliminated in the future. Hudson Institute convened an illustrious panel to offer their thoughts on Max Singer's insightful new book including the author; Hillel Fradkin, Hudson Senior Fellow and Director of the Center on Islam, Democracy, and the Future of the Muslim World;

Carol Lancaster, Dean of the School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University; and Michael Mandelbaum, Christian A. Herter Professor of American Foreign Policy at The Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies. Hudson President and CEO Kenneth Weinstein moderated the event.

HUDSON INSTITUTE-EPPC SUMMER FILM SERIES HEAVEN: WE'RE IN HEAVEN

Hudson Institute's Bradley Center for Philanthropy and Civic Renewal joined the Ethics and Public Policy Center (EPPC) to present the 2011 Summer Film Series. Hosted by EPPC Resident Scholar James Bowman and Hudson Senior Fellow William Schambra, the films examined the afterlife, a subject that for seventy years has been found surprisingly congenial and often treated with moving sensitivity.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN KYRGYZSTAN: IMPLICATIONS FOR THE UNITED STATES

The changing political situation in Kyrgyzstan has a bearing on American national security as the Manas Transit Center outside the capital of Bishkek is the vital supply link for U.S. and NATO forces fighting in Afghanistan. To analyze current dynamics, Hudson assembled a panel that included Sheradil Baktygulov, Director, Program to Strengthen the Parliament, Bishkek; Seth Cropsey, Hudson Senior Fellow; Miriam Lanskoy, Director for Russia and Eurasia, National Endowment for Democracy; and Seyitbek Usmanov, Director, Central Asia Free Market Institute, Bishkek. Senior Fellow David Satter moderated the panel.

JUNE

IDENTITY, DEMOCRACY, AND THE NATION-STATE

Is a strong national core identity necessary to democracy, or is it ultimately subversive? An eminent panel addressed this issue by asking important questions such as whether immigrants have the right to redefine the culture of their new homeland. Panelists included Italian philosopher, Senator, and former President of the Italian Senate Marcello Pera; leading American Catholic political thinker Michael Novak; renowned scholar of American politics James Ceaser; and Distinguished Writer-in-Residence at New York University Paul Berman. Prominent journalist Christopher Caldwell of the Weekly Standard and Financial Times moderated the event. Hudson Senior Fellow John Fonte introduced.

GLOBAL PHILANTHROPY: SKATING TO WHERE THE PUCK IS GOING TO BE

The Center for Global Prosperity was proud to launch its 2011 Index of Global Philanthropy and Remittances, the annual summary of the magnitude and sources of private giving to the developing world, now in its 6th year of publication. Panelists discussing the findings of the new edition were Byron Johnson, Director of the Institute for Studies of Religion, Baylor University; Susan Raymond, Executive Vice President of Changing Our World; David Simms, Board Chair, Opportunity International Network; and Dennis Whittle, President of the Whittle Group and co-founder of Global Giving. Carol Adelman, Senior Fellow and Director Center for Global Prosperity, moderated the discussion.

U.S.-RUSSIAN RELATIONS: STAGNATION OR MODERNIZATION?

As Russian President Dmitri Medvedev moves toward the end of his first term of office, what awaits Russia and U.S.-Russian relations? Medvedev has spoken of the need to modernize the Russian economy, and yet his political mentor, Prime Minister Vladimir Putin, has warned against "unjustified liberal experiments" and has proceeded with consolidation of major industries in the State's hands. Panelists included Ilan Berman, Vice President, American Foreign Policy Council; Stephen Blank, Strategic Studies Institute, U.S. Army War College; David Satter, Senior Fellow, Hudson Institute; Ariel Cohen, Senior Research Fellow, Heritage Foundation; Pavel Ivley, Director, Institute of Modern Russia; Donald Jensen, Senior Fellow, Center for Transatlantic Relations; and William Pomeranz, Deputy Director, Kennan Institute, The Woodrow Wilson Center. Lev Ponomarev, President for Human Rights (Moscow) gave a keynote address.

APRIL

SYRIA: A TURNING POINT?

Amid the weekly protests of the Syrian revolt, Hudson Institute hosted a timely panel discussion of current events in Syria, including opposition movements and the future of Syria. Panelists included Ammar Abdulhamid, Founder and Director of the Tharwa Foundation; Hanin Ghadar, Managing Editor of NOW Lebanon; and Lee Smith, Hudson Institute Visiting Fellow. Hudson Institute Senior Fellow and Director of the Center for Islam, Democracy, and the Future of the Muslim World Hillel Fradkin moderated the panel.

RACE AND RACISM IN AMERICA: ARE WE NOW A COLOR-BLIND SOCIETY?

The Bradley Center for Philanthropy and Civic Renewal held a discussion of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation's "America Healing" initiative and its intellectual underpinnings, featuring Sterling Speim, President and CEO of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation; Kellogg Vice President Gail Christopher; Harvard Professor Stephan Thernstrom; and Ron Christie, author of Acting White: The Curious History of a Racial Slur. Bradley Center Director William Schambra moderated the discussion.

THE RUMSFELD ERA AT THE PENTAGON: INSIDE PERSPECTIVES

Few Americans have spent more time near the center of power than former Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld. His years at the helm of the Pentagon included momentous times, including the 9/11 attacks. To discuss his memoir, Known and Unknown. Hudson Institute held a discussion with Gen. Peter Pace, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Lewis Libby, Senior Vice President at Hudson Institute and former chief of staff to Vice President Richard Cheney; Douglas Feith, Hudson Institute Senior Fellow and former Under Secretary of Defense for Policy; Jamie McIntyre, former Senior Pentagon correspondent for CNN; and Secretary Rumsfeld, who responded to the panel's comments.

HOW SHOULD THE U.S. RESPOND TO THE PROSPECT OF ISLAMIST GOVERNMENTS?

With the fall of governments in Egypt and Tunisia and unrest in Libya, Yemen, Bahrain, and Oman, policymakers are considering the future political landscape in these and other Middle Eastern countries. Panelists included Ed Husain, Senior Fellow, Council on Foreign Relations; Hedieh Mirahmadi, President, World Organization for Resource Development; and Hillel Fradkin, Senior Fellow and Director, Center on Islam, Democracy and the Future of the Muslim World, Hudson Institute. Nina Shea, Senior Fellow and Director of Hudson's Center for Religious Freedom, moderated the panel.

CAN ARGENTINA FREE ITSELF FROM CHAVISMO?

Once considered the jewel of South America, Argentina is now suffering from runaway inflation and declining regional influence. Argentina's foreign policy has taken an increasingly anti-American direction, and President Cristina Kirchner has taken cues from Hugo Chávez by attacking and intimidating private companies and adopting statist antimarket policies. Panelists discussing this topic included: Hugo Alconada, author and lead investigative journalist for La Nación (Buenos Aires); Martin Bohmer, Professor and Dean of the School of Law, University of San Andrés, Argentina; Lino Gutierrez, CEO, Gutierrez Global, and former U.S. Ambassador to Argentina; Christopher Sands, Hudson Institute Senior Fellow; Dan Fisk, V.P. for Policy and Strategy Planning, International Republican Institute; and James Roberts, Research Fellow for Economic Freedom and Growth, Heritage Foundation. The panel was moderated by Jaime Daremblum, Hudson Institute Senior Fellow and Director of the Center for Latin American Studies.

DOING HEALTH CARE REFORM THE RIGHT WAY—PUTTING THE STATES BACK IN CHARGE

Hudson Institute was pleased to host Senator Orrin Hatch

(R-Utah), the ranking Republican on the Senate Committee on Finance, as he laid out his ideas for meaningful reform of the American health care system. Senator Hatch argued that a decentralized reform effort will better address the particular needs of states and local communities by empowering states to act as fifty laboratories of democracy. Hudson CEO Kenneth Weinstein introduced Senior Fellow Tevi Troy, the former Deputy Secretary of Health and Human Services, who introduced Senator Hatch and moderated the question and answer period.

THE NEOCONSERVATIVE PERSUASION: SELECTED ESSAYS, 1942-2009

As conservatives try once again to re-envision America's future and how to secure it, the publication of this volume of previously uncollected essays by Irving Kristol, "the godfather of neoconservativism," could not be timelier. The fifty essays, spanning seven decades and organized thematically, display the enormous range of Kristol's interests and concerns.

Four panelists discussed the book—Leon Kass, Madden-Jewett Chair, American Enterprise Institute; Charles Krauthammer, Pulitzer prize-winning syndicated columnist and political commentator; William Kristol, Editor, the Weekly Standard; and Irwin Stelzer, Senior Fellow, Hudson Institute. Hudson CEO Kenneth Weinstein introduced the panel; Hudson Senior Fellow Amy Kass served as moderator; and editor Gertrude Himmelfarb provided closing remarks.

EGYPT, ITS REVOLUTION AND FUTURE: HOW SHOULD THE U.S. RESPOND?

With Mubarak's reign in Egypt over, policymakers in the U.S. and around the globe are seeking to understand why Egypt's government proved so fragile and what the prospects are for transition to a more democratic regime.

Panelists discussing the situation in Egypt included: Samuel Tadros, founder and Executive Board member, Egyptian Union of Liberal Youth; Douglas Feith, Hudson Senior Fellow and Director, Center for National Security Strategies; Paul Marshall, Hudson Senior Fellow; and Lee Smith, Hudson Visiting Fellow and Senior Editor, the Weekly Standard. Nina Shea, Hudson Senior Fellow and Director, Center for Religious Freedom, moderated the event.

HOW NECESSARY IS CHRISTIANITY TO EUROPEAN IDENTITY?

Once the heart of Christendom, Europe now is increasingly a secularist culture. While many states retain Christian symbols on their flags and official sports team uniforms, and references to Christian beliefs remain in some constitutions, many Europeans are leaving the religion.

The panelists were Marcello Pera, former President of the Italian Senate and Visiting Fellow at Hudson Institute, as well as George Weigel, Distinguished Senior Fellow at the Ethics and Public Policy Center. Hudson Senior Fellows Nina Shea and Paul Marshall introduced and moderated the event.

KENNETH R. WEINSTEIN ELECTED HUDSON INSTITUTE PRESIDENT AND CEO BY BOARD OF TRUSTEES

In March, Hudson CEO Kenneth R. Weinstein was elected by the Hudson Institute Board of Trustees as President and CEO of the Institute. Former President Herbert I. London will now serve as President Emeritus and as a member of the management committee.

"We are fortunate to have Ken Weinstein lead our Institute into an exciting second half-century of unique, future-oriented policy research," says Board Chairman Allan R. Tessler. "Hudson's incisive research is helping shape a better tomorrow, and Ken will build on Hudson's strong record of accomplishments."

"Herbert London, through his many years of service and leadership, has been an excellent President," continues Tessler. "Herb's important contributions as President Emeritus will continue to be of great value to the Institute."

Kenneth Weinstein, who first joined Hudson in 1991, holds a Ph.D. from Harvard University in political theory. He has served as CEO of Hudson Institute since June 2005, directing Hudson's growing Washington operations. Widely respected in the diplomatic and policy circles, Weinstein has written on international affairs for leading publications in the United States, Europe, and Asia. Weinstein was the first American invited to blog, in French, for Le Monde. He maintains a weekly blog at LeMonde.fr.

Weinstein serves by presidential appointment and Senate confirmation as a member of the National Humanities Council, the governing body of the National Endowment for the Humanities, and has been decorated with a knighthood in Arts and Letters by the French Ministry of Culture and Communication. His latest book, co-edited with Paul Aligica, is The Essential Herman Kahn: In Defense of Thinking (Lexington Books, 2009).

SCHOLAR IN THE SPOTLIGHT
TEVI TROY

EVI TROY is a Hudson Institute Senior Fellow whose work focuses on health care, domestic policy, and presidential history. Since joining Hudson in June 2009, Troy has written extensively on health care reform, Medicare, health care innovation, biopreparedness, the presidency, and economic policy.

During debates on health care policy, economic policy, and the upcoming 2012 presidential elections, Troy has become a frequent commenter on health care reform, entitlement programs, budgetary issues, and presidential politics. He writes regularly for numerous news outlets and magazines, including Commentary Magazine, Washingtonian Magazine, Politico, National Affairs, City Journal, the Washington Post, the Weekly Standard, National Review, and National Review Online. He appears frequently on Fox News and Fox Business, as well as other television and radio outlets. He has also testified before the U.S. Senate.

An expert on the presidency, Troy is the rare combination of an academically-trained presidential historian and former senior staff member at the White House. He is the author of the well-received book Intellectuals and the American Presidency, and he has recently been studying what presidents and other senior politicians read. His work on this subject has appeared in the Wall Street Journal, the Washington Post, National Review, and Politico, as well as around the web. In that vein, he presents a weekly books segment on the Bill Bennett Show and hosts his own podcast, New Books in Public Policy, for which he interviews well-known authors of the day.

Before joining Hudson in 2009, Troy had an active and varied career as a senior U.S. government official. He was unanimously confirmed as the Deputy Secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and served in that capacity from 2007 to 2009. He has extensive White House experience, having served as Deputy Assistant and Acting Assistant to the President for Domestic Policy, where he ran the Domestic Policy Council and was the White House's lead adviser on health care, labor, education, transportation, immigration, crime, veterans, and welfare. From 1998 to 2000, he served as the Policy Director for Sen. John Ashcroft and as Senior Domestic Policy Adviser and Domestic Policy Director for the House Policy Committee from 1996 to 1998.

Troy holds a B.S. in Industrial and Labor Relations from Cornell University and an M.A. and Ph.D. in American Civilization from the University of Texas at Austin. He finished his Ph.D. as a Hudson Institute Herman Kahn Fellow from 1995 to 1996. He is a member of the publication committee of National Affairs, a member of the Board of Fellows of the Jewish Policy Center, and a Visiting Scholar at the School of Policy and Environmental Affairs at Indiana University. When not engaged with Hudson work, Troy keeps quite busy at home; he and his wife Kami have four children under 10.

HISTORY OF THE FUTURE: THE SHAPE OF THE WORLD TO COME IS VISIBLE TODAY By Max Singer

(Rowman & Littlefield)

This book, by Hudson cofounder Max Singer, examines the modernization process that is creating a new era in human life, arguing that modernization is an inexorable process that will change the whole world in the course of the next 200 years.

■ IRAN AND LATIN AMERICA

By Jaime Daremblum (Hudson Institute)

In this briefing paper, Ambassador Daremblum analyzes the threat and influence Iran wields in Latin America. The study pays particular attention to the Venezuela-Iran axis and the ramifications that it has for the region and the Western hemisphere as a whole.

■ POLICYMAKING AT THE EDGE OF CHAOS: MUSINGS ON POLITICAL IDEOLOGY. THROUGH THE LENS OF COMPLEXITY

By Christopher Ford (Hudson Institute)

This briefing paper explores the imlications for public policymaking of "complexity theory," an emerging field that has its origins in mathematics and the hard sciences, but which is increasingly thought to offer insights in the social sciences.

■ AMERICA AND THE CANADIAN PRESENCE

By Christopher Sands (Hudson Institute)

A discussion of four trends that will reshape the U.S. approach to the bilateral relationship with Canada in the next 40 years forms the basis of this briefing paper.

■ WHAT SO PROUDLY WE HAIL: THE AMERICAN SOUL IN STORY, SPEECH, AND SONG

Edited by Amy Kass, Leon Kass, and Diana Schaub (ISI Press)

An anthology of important American stories, speeches, and songs, this book addresses issues of national identity, the American character, the virtues and aspirations of civic life, and the problem of making a national one out of the multicultural many. It was the subject of Hudson Institute's 2011 Bradley Symposium, detailed on page 9.

■ POLITICAL RISKS OF INCREASED RELIANCE ON DEFENSE IMPORTS FROM BRAZIL

By Seth Cropsey and Jaime Daremblum (Hudson Institute)

As the United States is considering increased military imports from Brazil, this briefing paper shows that it is important to examine the risks that come with developing the bilateral defense trade relationship.

■ THE NEOCONSERVATIVE PERSUASION

■ CURRENT TRENDS IN ISLAMIST IDEOLOGY: VOLUME 11

Edited by Eric Brown, Hillel Fradkin, and Hassan Mneimneh for Hudson Institute's Center on Islam, Democracy, and the Future of the Muslim World

The eleventh volume of Hudson Institute's signature journal Current Trends in Islamist Ideology examines Islamism in the context of a rapidly changing and tumultuous Middle East. It features essays on the Turkish AKP government on the eve of elections, Arab Islamist perspectives on Turkey's Rise, Iran's religious outreach to Sunni Arabs, Shiite messianism, and the drifting apart of Europe and Turkey.

■ 2011 INDEX OF GLOBAL PHILANTHROPY AND REMITTANCES

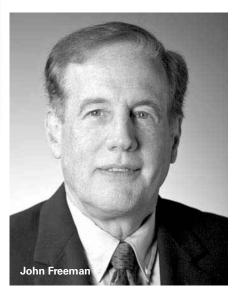

Edited by Hudson Institute's Center for Global Prosperity

The sixth edition of the Index of Global Philanthropy and Remittances details the sources and magnitude of private giving to the developing world.

The 2011 Index's data from the first full year of the global recession confirms that private giving to the developing world has remained remarkably stable. The figures once again show that the full scale of a country's generosity is not measured just by government aid, but by private giving as well.

In May, the Center hosted an event launching the 2011 Index. Senior Fellow and Director of the Center for Global Prosperity Carol Adelman moderated the distinguished panel discussion. For more on the event, please see pages 11–12.

that. The fact is we live in a world in which our own security, freedom, and prosperity at home are inseparable from the security, freedom, and prosperity of people in distant lands."

Also speaking at the dinner was Hudson Senior Vice President Lewis Libby. Libby honored Walter Stern for his dedication to Hudson Institute, noting that "Wally's gifts of patience, insight, and pragmatism cut through it all. In the words of former Hudson President Mitch Daniels, 'no one ever achieved more by claiming credit less.' Wally is a man after Ronald Reagan's heart."

Libby continued: "When Wally joined Hudson he brought to it great skills. But he also brought something else equally impressive; he brought persistence and endurance to the Institute."

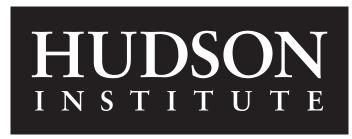

Hudson President Emeritus Herbert London closed the evening with a tribute and toast to the legacy of Gen. James Doolittle, the intrepid aviator who led the daring April 1942 raid on Tokyo in the aftermath of the Pearl Harbor attack. The annual prize has been bestowed upon Ronald Reagan, Henry Kissinger, Richard Cheney, George Shultz, and David Petraeus, among others.
